DEFENDS "CRIME" IN RED RAIDS

Goldberg Declares "Undercover Informers" All Right; Clashes With Judge Anderson

To commit crime and assist criminals for the sole purpose of facilitating prearranged arrests, by "undercover informers," was declared "the only practical and effective way" by Assistant United States Attorney Goldberg, arguing today for the prosecution of thirteen alleged "Reds" on trial for deportation.

Attorney Goldberg declared these methods were in use by postoffice

STOPS RUNAWAY HORSES AND SAVES CHILDREN

A span of runaway horses, galloping along Summer street, near Cedar street in Somerville, were stopped within a few yards of a group of children by Patrolman Louis J. Belsarini today. The horses, attached to a wagon owned by the C. F. Hathaway Baking Company, became frightened on Highland avenue and dashed along Cedar street, swinging into Summer street. The policeman ran out and catching the bridle of one horse, managed to bring both to a stop. According to witnesses his act prevented the death or injury of the children, who were playing in the street.

OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE FROM
SIMON SWIG, Vice-President, Tremont Trust Company

Dear Friends:

No doubt you have noticed the front pages of the Boston daily newspapers, dotted with bold, black type, proclaiming the payment by numerous banks of 5% interest on savings deposits.

Everybody is doing it—and there is a reason—the Tremont Trust Company.

When this bank began the payment of 5% interest, it became the object of attack, but the more they bit at our heels the more determined were we to continue our policy of giving savings depositors a fair share of our earnings.

To safeguard ourselves against those who would destroy us for our allegiance to the people, we took a page out of the story of Joseph of old, and conserved our resources, with the result that when the days of financial stress came to the banking circles of Boston, we were so strongly fortified that we were able to continue our way, strong, growing and happy, and to give assistance and succor to others.

When it was found that we were too strong to be destroyed, the 5's commenced to appear. Their appearance was a signal of the success of the fight to give the people an increased share in bank earnings.

We have set our heart on obtaining a still greater concession for the people. We want them to have the privilege of withdrawing their savings at any time practically without the loss of interest, and to be paid interest monthly.

To be sure, through our efforts, the law was changed to enable banks to pay interest monthly on savings deposits, but the banks are not paying monthly.

Some "place" or "put" deposits on interest monthly; others have deposits "go" on interest monthly. This is not paying interest monthly; it is not allowing withdrawals any time practically without loss of interest.

To illustrate: A makes a deposit on May 15 in a bank which places deposits on interest monthly on the 15th day of the month. On June 15 A withdraws his deposit. He gets no interest on that deposit. If he keeps his money in a bank two months and then withdraws, he gets no interest. If he keeps it on deposit two months and 29 days and then withdraws, he gets no interest. To get interest he must keep it on deposit a full three months from May 15 in banks which place or put deposits on interest monthly, but pay interest only once in three months; or must keep it on deposit a full six months from May 15 in banks which place or put deposits on interest monthly, but pay interest only once in six months.

The Tremont Trust Company pays interest every month; it does not wait for three months or six months, and it allows withdrawals at any time practically without the loss of interest.

I am to believe that our great growth in deposits has led other banks to pay 5% interest. I am of the further belief that our continued growth will lead other banks to follow us in paying interest monthly and allowing withdrawals practically without the loss of interest.

May I ask you to demonstrate by your deposits with us that you want all the banks to pay interest monthly on savings deposits and to allow withdrawals practically without loss of interest?

Saturday our bank is open from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. Make it the banner day in our history by bringing in your deposits.

Yours truly,
SIMON SWIG.

BARS OUT 14 POLICE STRIKERS

Mayor Vetoes Plan to Reinstate Them Among 29 Former Firemen

An attempt by the City Council to reinstate twenty-nine men in the Fire Department, including fourteen striking policemen, was checkmated today by Mayor Peters' veto of a council resolution.

The resolution favored legislation providing "that John J. Cronin, and others, veterans of the World War, may be reinstated in their former positions in the Fire Department."

The Mayor declares the phrase "and others" would let in fourteen striking policemen who left the fire department to join the police force, some as far back as 1910, as well as twelve who resigned to follow more profitable occupations, two pensioners and one fireman, dishonorably discharged.

"Were I to approve of the passage of a law such as the resolution in question advocates, I should be guilty of an act of injustice to the 240 veterans who have passed the civil service examination and are now on the qualified list awaiting appointment to the fire department," the Mayor declares in his veto message to the Council. "No right-thinking man should advocate such a course on my part."

The Mayor adds that, with his approval, Fire Commissioner Murphy has ruled that men resigning from the fire department to better their condition, shall not be reinstated, and that all appointments in future be made from the veterans on the qualified list.

DEATH SUSPECT IS 'PARADED'

Accused in South Braintree Murder, Is Taken to Scene of Crime

Brockton, May 7.—Suspected as a member of the bandit gang which raided Braintree on April 15 and killed two men while stealing $18,000 from the Slater-Morrill Shoe Company, Riccardo Calone of Hyde Park was brought here today in an automobile.

More or less like a caged animal, he was paraded up and down the streets used by the bandits when they committed the murder and robbery. Calone sat in one of the seats of the auto with State detectives guarding him.

The display was under command of District Attorney Katzman and Cap-

Senate Won't Indorse Sallies' Drive

None of the Senators arose to defend the order.

FLEES TO ESCAPE REBELS' ARMY

He is reported to have left the capital shortly after midnight, aboard a special train well guarded by loyalist troops commanded by General Candido Aguilar.

The State of Vera Cruz is still loyal to the President, and it is expected to make a stand there against the onrush of the rebels.

DEFENDS GOVERNMENT "CRIMINAL" METHODS IN RED RAIDS

Inspectors and the customs department; characterized the procedure of the defence as "a campaign of abuse," and referred with bitter sarcasm to Judge Anderson's "judicial silence" during what he termed a "vicious attack on the Attorney-General" by counsel for the defence at yesterday's hearing.

"With a campaign of abuse," said Goldberg, "comes a rallying cry. In this campaign the rallying cry was 'under cover informers,' as if that were something new. It exists in the government's various branches; in the Postoffice Department, with its test letters seeking evidence of the misuse of mails, for instance."

Judge Anderson at this point interrupted to differ with the Assistant District Attorney on his classification of postoffice inspectors with "under cover informers," as referred to during the trial. He informed Goldberg that he was "moved to speak" lest his "judicial silence" create the impression that he accepted the classification.

Attorney Goldberg retorted by observing that the court's "judicial silence" was most noticeable during the "vicious attacks" on the Attorney-General at the hearings yesterday, and insisted that it was his right "morally and legally" to express his opinion to the court. He declared that postoffice inspectors who put test letters into the mails to catch suspected clerks could be classed as "under-cover informers," as could also customs inspectors, who, under orders from the Collector of Customs, permitted and assisted smuggling so as to "facilitate arrests by prearrangement."

He denied the participation of "under cover informers" in the recent raids in Massachusetts and three other New England States; and said that all arranged meetings for the night of January 2 were advertised far ahead of time.

In his opening argument, in which he defended Attorney-General Palmer from the attacks made by counsel for the defence, Goldberg said:

"We heard at yesterday's session the chanting of a hymn of hate against Attorney-General Palmer. It was a vicious attack."

He also defended Frank Burke and "Big Bill" Flynn of the United States Secret Service for their participation in the raids of January 2.

"We were told," said he, "that the Attorney-General was on trial in this court, that law and order were to be vindicated. It sounds like the recent gubernatorial campaign. The entire proceedings here remind me of a session of Congress. We even admitted a telgram sent from Congress to Lloyd George, one of the telegrams from our many friends of Irish freedom. I hold the belief that we were holding habeas corpus proceedings."

COMBINATION SUGAR SALES NOW BARRED

passed by the Legislature to prohibit the sale of foodstuffs or other commodities as a condition for obtaining sugar.

The bill contains an emergency preamble declaring it to be necessary "for the immediate preservation of the public convenience" and became effective today.

The new law says:

"No person, firm or corporation, either himself or by his agents, or as the servant or agent of another shall require as a condition precedent to the sale and delivery of any article of food to any person, the purchase of any other article of food by such person."

Any person who violates the law will be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by a fine of $100 for each offence. The law will be in operation until January 1, 1919.

Governor Coolidge, before departing for Vermont, signed the most important group of bills passed by the Legislature this year. They include:

Mayor Peters' tax bill, to increase the tax limit of the city of Boston from $18.52 to $11 for 1921.

Requiring all bakeries to register with the State Department of Public Health and establishing drastic regulations to provide for sanitary conditions in bakeries.

An increase of the registration fees of motorcycles of from $2 to $5 a year and of autos of less than thirty-horsepower of from $5 to $10.

To require the teaching of American history with instructions "to fit pupils for the duties of citizenship" in all elementary and high schools.

To require free employment agencies, in directing applicants for employment to an employer in whose establishment a strike is in progress, to state that fact to the applicant.

ASKS JOHNSON'S LEAGUE STAND

Hoover Issues Challenge to Senator to Tell What He Means by "English"

By International News Service.

New York, May 7.—Herbert Hoover today issued a challenge to Senator Hiram Johnson to make his position clear on the League of Nations issue.

A statement was issued by Hoover as follows:

"Senator Johnson is quoted as saying that he has never expressed opposition to any League to prevent war and reduce armaments. This indication of a change of heart is a matter of great satisfaction.

"He states that he does not want an English League. None of us do. But does the Senator mean that the covenant with the Lodge reservations is an English League?

"This is the covenant and these are the reservations which I have supported since they were first voted by the majority of the Senate last November.

"Will the Senator speak out plainly on this subject so that people may know where he stands and what he stands for in this matter?"

Johnson Turns Down Vice-Presidency Offer

Washington, May 7.—The bosses of the Republican party who have been throwing out suggestions to the effect that the nomination for Vice-President might be given to Senator Hiram Johnson if he didn't interfere with their plans to name the candidate for President are not going to get away with that line of talk.

Johnson will not accept the nomination for second place on the ticket. He declared emphatically that under no circumstances will he take the Vice-Presidential nomination.

His statement was made after he had talked with Senators Lodge and Borah and an earnest conversation with Senator Knox, who has been proposed as the chief party in interest of a Knox-Johnson ticket.

Although Senator Johnson declined to reveal even so much as one little word of what was said in any of these discussions, he made his refusal of the second place nomination ignored and plain. He said:

"It is a mighty singular thing that the gentlemen who are so kindly suggesting me for Vice-President profess to look with horror upon the notion that I should be nominated for President. What a calamity it would be if I should become Vice-President and then some one simply the President's office should happen to die.

"Under no circumstances would I accept the nomination for Vice-President. It ought not to be thought of for a single moment."

FIGHT ON McCALL BY WEEKS MEN

Opposition to the appointment of ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall as a member of the tariff commission is expected to develop in the Senate, it was learned today.

While Senator Lodge has declined to define his position on the matter of confirmation, it is understood that a number of members of the upper house still resent the defeat in 1918 of John W. Weeks by Senator David I. Walsh, for which McCall was held partly responsible.

Ex-Senator Weeks lives in Washington much of the time and has retained his friendships with his former colleagues in the Senate.

Senator Lodge said he would not discuss McCall's confirmation until the committee made its report.

It is understood that Senator Walsh will not press for this report.

SUSPECT TAKEN TO BRAINTREE

Prisoner in Auto is "Paraded" Over Scene of Murder and Robbery

tain Proctor of the State Detective Bureau, State Detective Edward Sherlock was one of the principal actors.

Valsoe had spent a night at the hands of the investigators. They had grilled him on the various phases of the Braintree robbery and the crime attempted at Bridgewater.

Then he was arraigned on the charges of operating a motor-cycle recklessly, failing to have his headlights burning and also on the charge of speeding. That the investigation might go on, a continuance was granted on the request of District Attorney Katzman.

TWO IDENTIFIED

As matters stand today two men are under arrest who have been positively identified as participants in the two crimes; Nick Sacco, as the driver of the car carrying the robbers who rushed into Braintree, killed two men and stole $15,000; Bartholomew Vanzetti, as the tall man with the light mustache, who stood in the middle of a road in Bridgewater and fired shots at Guard Bowles and the paymaster of the L. Q. White Shoe Company on the day before Christmas.

In their capture the authorities may have prevented a hold-up of a paymaster in one of the shoe manufacturing towns. Both Sacco and Vanzetti were armed. They had in their pockets a supply of cartridges which fitted a rifle.

The cartridges were of the same calibre which Assistant Superintendent Harry J. Murray of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency found in the road in Bridgewater soon after the bandits escaped, when Guard Bowles frustrated their attempt at robbing the paymaster.

It was this same type of rifle cartridge that was found in the automobile the bandits abandoned following the raid on Braintree three weeks ago. They were made by the Peters Arms Company. A gun found in Sacco's home, hidden beneath a mattress, could be used for firing cartridges of this type.

ADVOCATES VIOLENCE.

Vanzetti admits being a radical of the most pronounced form. Among his effects was found a circular written by him in which he advocated the overthrow of capital and the seizure of the riches of wealthy men by force and violence, if necessary. He is a peddler and has lived in Plymouth for some few years.

At the time of the strike in the Plymouth Cordage Works he was a leader among the agitators and delivered incendiary addresses. He speaks English perfectly.

Sacco presents a rather neat appearance. He was planning to return to Italy and it is thought that after the raid planned for yesterday the entire gang expected to go overseas.

The authorities have the names of two more members of the band and it is believed that an arrest is imminent. Inspectors Burke and Crawford of the Boston police, who worked on the Braintree case, are seeking one of the two wanted. State Detectives Sherlock, Brouillard and Murphy are hunting the other.

CARRANZA'S CAREER STORMY AS HE WON WAY TO DICTATORSHIP

SUCCESS AS REBEL LEADER

Forced Huerta From Power and Ignored Demands Made by the U. S.

Venustiano Carranza sprang into prominence in Mexico shortly after President Francisco Madero was assassinated and Huerta became dictator.

Carranza was then Governor of the State of Coahuilla. From a rebel, at first supposed to be in the class of bandits such as Emiliano Zapata, Pasquale Orozo and Juan de La, he became the head of the revolutionary forces of a half-dozen powerful and rich Northern States.

Early in his career as a rebel opposed to Huerta, Carranza issued a "Proclamation of Principles." In this platform he denounced Huerta's administration as one of assassination and usurpation, and contrary to the Constitution of Mexico.

Carranza, who was an intimate friend of the Madero family, and was said to have enlisted Francisco Madero in active politics, pledged himself to give Mexico a fair election in the event of his being successful. When word of the murder of Madero reached him, he wasted no time in declaring his opposition to Huerta, then supposed to be all powerful.

VICTORY OVER HUERTA.

It soon developed that Huerta was far from strong in the north of Mexico, and Carranza had but little trouble in making headway against him.

The nucleus of the Constitutional forces of which he later became "First Chief," was a band of 200 men raised by Jesus Carranza, his brother. The town of Monclova, Coahuila, was chosen as the headquarters of the Constitutionalists. The Federal troops fled from this town when Carranza approached. The rebel forces were well supplied with modern rifles but they lacked artillery, and later ammunition and arms. Carranza asserted that if the United States would lift the embargo on arms for revolutionists he would be able to wipe out Huerta in six months.

The Constitutionalist forces were successful and Huerta fled to Europe. Carranza, who was then fifty-four years old, was elected to the Presidency after serving as a dictator.

During this time the United States first recognized the bandit, Francisco Villa, as the legitimate candidate for the office. He was allowed to secure arms and ammunition from this country, but was later repudiated and recognition given Carranza.

Then began the series of murders of American citizens in Mexico, attacks on American women and seizures of American property, which brought the two countries to the verge of war. Demand after demand was sent to Carranza by the State Department that he punish the guilty, all without effect.

INVASION BY U. S.

Then came the American occupation of Vera Cruz, followed by the Pershing expedition into Mexico with the order to bring Jack Villa, dead or alive. National Guard and regular troops were hurried to the border, there to engage in patrols and manoeuvres until the return of the Pershing expedition after several months, empty handed.

Although the State Department is said to have notified Carranza that American munitions were being used by Federal troops for the slaughter of American citizens, the oppressions continued. One of the most spectacular acts was the arrest of Consular Agent Jenkins, charged with conniving with bandits in his own kidnaping. Repeated demands that he be released, made by the State Department, were refused and Jenkins was forced to stand trial, at which he was acquitted.

Throughout the entire administration of Carranza, Mexico has been torn with strife, with many bandits and revolutionaries, including the partiastic Villa, almost continually in the field. Carranza managed to maintain his dominance, however, until the present revolution, which gained tremendous headway, with the result that Carranza was urged to abdicate by many of his most devoted followers.

HEAR CARRANZA IS IN FLIGHT

Reported He Has Fled Capital to Escape Forces of Enemies

In case of utter defeat and the collapse of his government he will, it is expected, seek refuge on one of the foreign ships in the harbor rather than trust to the mercies of the insurgent chiefs.

It was intimated in official circles here that in such case the Mexican executive would be given asylum aboard any American warship that happened to be in the harbor.

While Vera Cruz is friendly toward Carranza, advices from Mexico indicate that the state of Tlaxcala, through which the fugitive President's party must pass, is in rebel control.

Intense excitement was manifest in Mexican revolutionary circles here over the possibility that the President might fall into the hands of his foes before reaching the coast.

If Carranza is actually in flight and his government in ruins, it is considered likely here that Fernando Calderon, a well known Mexican attorney, will be named provisional President.

Calderon is not a candidate in the pending elections, in which General Obregon is expected to be elected President.

News from across the Rio Grande today showed the rebels in the saddle almost everywhere. At Juarez, Colonel Pinones, a Pancho Villa henchman, began negotiations with the leaders of the present insurrection. This was taken to mean that the redoubtable "Pancho" was preparing to join the new rebel forces. It is stated that Villa is ready to serve the present rebel chiefs on no other condition than that he shall not be "humiliated."

KEEPS ROUTE OPEN.

President Carranza is keeping open a way for his escape from Mexico should circumstances develop to make his flight from the country necessary, is is evident, from reports reaching Liberal constitutionalist headquarters at Hermosillo, Sonora.

It is disclosed by these reports that the Mexican President has ordered another reorganization of his forces in both the Vera Cruz district and the Isthmus of Tehauntepec, placing his son-in-law, General Candido Aguilar, in supreme command of the forces in both sections.

General Pablo Gonzales, who deserted the Carranza government for the rebel forces, has issued a statement declaring that he is not supporting General Obregon. This was accepted as indication that a new revolutionary force may be forming in Mexico.

Toluca, reported to have been taken by the rebels, is now to be in control of General de la Torre, Federal leader. Passenger traffic has been resumed between Juarez and Chihuahua. Rebel activity near Vera Cruz is reported as increasing.

Villa May Join Foes of Carranza Regime.

By International News Service.

El Paso, Texas, May 7.—Revolutionary leaders stated today that if they succeed in overthrowing the Carranza government, Fernando Ig-leslas Calderon probably will be named provisional President of Mexico pending the elections, in which General Obregon is expected to win. Calderon is an attorney in Mexico City.

Colonel Pinones, an agent of "Pancho" Villa, conferred at Juarez today with Liberal Constitutionalist leaders, presumably to negotiate for the placing of Villa's army under the rebel standard. It is reported today that General Elias Galiz, commander-in-chief of the revolutionists, has received a long letter from the bandit leader, offering his services unconditionally and named as his whole desire that he "be not humiliated."

The latter is reported to state that he seeks no personal advantages from the revolution, but is "fighting for the common people."

The city of Puebla, Mex., has been placed under martial law by General Pablo Gonzalez, rebel leader, according to advices received today. General Gonzalez has exacted a loan of 200,000 pesos from the city. A train running between Mexico City and Guadalajara was attacked May 5 and robbed of government funds. Many passengers were robbed. Traffic has been suspended.

Laredo Hears That Carranza Is at Capital

San Antonio, Tex., May 7.—Reports that Carranza has fled to Vera Cruz are denied in telegrams received at Laredo and other border points in direct communication with Mexico City, according to a special dispatch from Laredo published in the San Antonio News today.

Carranza is under constant surveillance of revolutionary agents and his escape without their knowledge is impossible, the dispatch declares.

CITIZENSHIP TAPE CUT FOR NAVAL RESERVISTS

Naval reservists on inactive duty who have not yet become citizens may do so now without going through the routine required of civilians. They are not required to pay the fee of $4, do not have to wait for several months to appear in court after having filed a petition for naturalization, and are given preference in the order of hearings in court. Reservists should communicate with the commandant, First Naval District, Navy Yard, Boston, who will arrange for their appearance in court.

NEW ROLLINS TRIAL HEARING MAY 22

Assistant District Attorney Gallagher and Judge Keating of the Superior Court conferred today regarding the plea for a date for a hearing on the petition for a new trial in the Rollins murder cases. It was agreed that the earliest date was May 22. There is to be another conference on a technicality which Gallagher says exists, in that Major Walsh applied for a hearing only in behalf of George Rollins. It is probable an agreement will be reached whereby the argument in the case of Charles Rollins will be made on the same day.

GIRL VANISHES $1,000 REWARD

Information Asked About Persons Criminally Responsible for Disappearance

New York, May 7.—Nellie Bly, employed by the New York Journal, today offered a reward of $1,000 for "exclusive information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons criminally responsible for the disappearance of Henrietta Bulte."

Henrietta Bulte is fourteen years old. She walked out of her home on Monday, April 12, at 10 a. m., and has not been seen or heard of since.

Henrietta has a pretty face, large brown eyes, pretty eyebrows, well-shaped forehead and a medium shade of brown hair. An expert in hair color would pronounce her hair "darkest blond." She is of medium height.

Her father was born in Cuba, but is an American citizen, and is a digarmaker. The family lives in a five-room flat at No. 116 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street.

K. C. SAVES SAILORS FROM PROFITEER GANG

Honolulu, May 7.—Profiteering in pineapples in the Hawaiian sport when American sailors come into port. The game was checked by the Knights of Columbus when the battle squadron touched here. Dealers cornered the pineapple market so that even housewives could not buy the fruit. Louis A. Bagley, in charge of K. of C. activities, obtained several truckloads of the fruit and dispensed it in large slices when the sailors came ashore. Profiteering in sightseeing trips, baker shops and in the renting of bathing suits was blocked by the organization, which ran free establishments.

FEAR MISSING DEDHAM WAR VETERAN IS DEAD

Dedham police are searching for Jens C. Hansen, a world war veteran, missing from his brother's home for Shaven Maye. Hansen, who was forty-nine, left home without hat or coat, telling his sister he was going to the back yard and would soon return. In the belief he might have drowned, several brooks and ponds in the vicinity as well as the Charles River will be searched. Hansen, the police say, suffered the hallucination that he was being followed by detectives, the result of shell shock overseas. He had between $200 and $400 on him when he left.

GIRL SLAYER GETS 10 YEARS

Shot Stepfather for Attacking Her She Says; Had Previously Killed Own Father

St. Louis, May 7.—Ursula Broderick, sixteen, who killed her stepfather, Joseph F. Woodlock, in their home here April 14, 1919, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury in Juvenile Court here and was sentenced to ten years in the Missouri penitentiary.

Three years ago the girl shot and killed her father when it was alleged he attacked her mother. A coroner's jury exonerated her.

Miss Broderick on the witness stand at the last trial testified her stepfather had tried to attack her before she shot and killed him. She said she told him if he molested her again she would kill him.

Cross-examination of the girl by Assistant Circuit Attorney Reeder was marked by clashes between Reeder and former Lieutenant-Governor Charles F. Johnson, attorney for the defense.

When Reeder asked the girl if she had not lived in the house with her stepfather for three weeks while her mother was in a hospital Johnson declared such a question was improper and made formal objection. The judge overruled the objection and Reeder proceeded with the cross-examination. The girl then answered "No."

But Judge Kiene rerulled on the testimony. Mrs. A. R. Pearson was a new witness for the State yesterday. Mrs. Pearson lived next door to the former trial when the jury disagreed, but yesterday Mrs. Pearson testified she had known Ursula for a long time and that the girl had several times told her she would kill her stepfather.

"She told me Joe Woodlock would not live to see the first day of May," said the witness.

Pictures of the rooms in which Woodlock was killed were shown to the jury. The witness identified them and pointed out the position of the body and furniture on the day of the killing.

The girl's mother, charged with having plotted her second husband's death will go to trial soon.

PULLED EKLUND CAR TO ROAD

Auto Truck Driver Describes How He Rescued Ditched Machine Without Thanks

Providence, May 7.—Frank Richardson, a motor truck driver of this city returned today to announce that it was he who pulled the Eklaud murder car out of the ditch at Wade's Corner on the Taunton Pike, the night of Sunday, April 25. Since that night he has been engaged in driving his truck to Allentown, Pa., and return.

Thus one of the mysterious features of the case has been cleared. State Officers Fleming and Murphy of Taunton were at a loss to understand why the truck driver did not come forth and tell his story. Richardson, who lives at No. 6 East Beacon street, this city, heard of the murder of Oliver L. Eklund on his return today.

Richardson's story to Chief of Detectives Maguire was that on the night of the murder he was driving along the Taunton Pike when he came across a car in a ditch. At the time there were two or three touring cars standing by. Two men in the ditched car asked for help and Richardson first hitched a rope to it.

He started his heavy truck only to have the rope part. Then he attached a chain and with it pulled the sedan back into the highway. In all the operation took about five minutes. Once the car was back on the main highway its driver and companion hastily entered it.

Then without the formality of thanking Richardson they drove off in the direction of Taunton. He did not see a third man nor did he hear the moaning that has been described. Richardson is sure he could recognize the men if he were to meet them again.

Richardson's story corroborates that told by Eric C. Robenius of No. 216 Garden street, Auburn, who was driving along the pike with his wife and mother on the night of the murder. Robenius was the first to report that the Packman was from this State rather than from Taunton, as previously reported.

The fire was beaten out by a large body of men.

STRIKERS SEEK HOLCOMB'S AID

Will Ask Governor to Mediate in Waterbury Walkout; Troops Not Called

Waterbury, Ct., May 7.—Leaders of the striking brass foundry laborers announced today that they would appeal to Governor Holcomb for mediation, following the failure of the local Chamber of Commerce to bring about a settlement. Mayor Sandland was also unsuccessful in his attempt to act as a mediator.

The strikers declared their determination to remain out until a satisfactory adjustment was made, and have called on the skilled workers for a sympathetic strike. No response has been made to this call, however. There has been no disturbance of any kind since the incipient disorders of a few days ago, and the State troops have not been called out. The American Brass Company has reopened its plant.

SAYS EACH HOME IS OUT $240

Financial Expert Figures Out the Cost of Profiteering by Corporations

By International News Service.

Washington, May 7.—"Every family in the United States is paying a profiteering tax of $240 a year as a result of the excess profits made by the combined corporations of the country during the war, W. Jett Lauck, former secretary of the War labor board, declared today before the Federal Railroad Labor Board.

Labor as a class, he declared, is worse off now than during the war. Instead of labor costs being the initial influence in forcing increases in the cost of living, he said, wage increases have lagged behind price increases.

"Capital, on the other hand," he said, "has received a larger proportion of the income of the country and is profiteering on such a scale as to menace the nation's future.

Appearing on behalf of the railroad workers in the "Big Four" Brotherhoods and the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, he presented a survey of prices, wages and profits containing startling charges of profiteering.

Lauck declared that the combined corporations of the country earned, in net profits, approximately $4,000,000,000 more per year in the three years of the war than in the three years previous to it.

In the shoe industry, he said, the profit items amounted, in 1917, to approximately three-fifths of the total price, and over five times the total labor costs.

HUSBAND LAUDS MISS HURST

Danielson Resents Public Criticism of "Trial Marriage" and Says It Is a Happy One

New York, May 7.—Jacques S. Danielson, partner of Fannie Hurst in an unusual marital experiment, made answer to unfavorable criticism occasioned by publication of news of the arrangement. He said:

"Quite a shiver seems to have rippled along the spine of the public conscience over the fact that Miss Hurst and I are occupying separate apartments during this period of housing shortage. There are worse economic crimes being committed day after day in the average joint home of domestic fidelity. Miss Hurst employs but one maid. I have the nightly by-the-hour services of a visiting maid.

"Upon the occasion of one or two illnesses that have occurred during these five years I have never felt for one instant the lack of either the garden variety of wifely interest or solicitude, and if I enlarge upon Miss Hurst's graceful expression of the matter, the dew is thick upon the roses of that garden.

"We are both workers and must devote long evenings to study and reading and practice, so that, all in all, I do not think we can be classified as a pair that has thrown off the responsibilities of the usual marriage ties so that we may play promiscuously."

2 MORE MURDERS LAID TO HARVEY

"Bluebeard" Can't Remember When Questioned About Woman and Girl

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, May 7.—Two more "wife" murders have been brought to "Bluebeard" Harvey's door today by the authorities. They are the murder of a woman whom investigators partly identified as Mrs. Oliver Roberts, and the killing of an unidentified girl who was choked to death with a silk chemise.

"Bluebeard," confronted with the accusation of those crimes, "can't remember" whether he killed them or not. There were many blank periods in his career, he said.

Says "Bluebeard" Killed Bay State Woman

The murderous career of "Bluebeard" Watson, self-confessed slayer of five wives, began in Shelburne Falls, Mass., where while only a boy he killed a woman for whose murder Jack O'Neil was hanged, according to Mrs. Nellie Ackerman of that town.

Mrs. Ackerman, sister of O'Neil, declared Watson was none other than Newton Harvey of Shelburne Falls, known to be on intimate terms with Mrs. Hattie McCloud, who was choked to death.

For this crime O'Neil, who displayed a considerable amount of money on the day of the murder, was hanged in 1898, although protesting on the gallows that he was innocent.

Mrs. Ackerman, who is visiting a sister at Cleveland, Ohio, said that while she had always been convinced of her brother's innocence, she had not connected Harvey with the murder until the arrest of the so-called "Bluebeard" in California. When Watson was first arrested, the Los Angeles police, believing him to be Harvey, tried to trace his activities in Massachusetts, without success. They were confident that his first murder was committed in Shelburne Falls, but could obtain no evidence.

Mrs. Ackerman said she would immediately communicate with Prosecutor Thomas Woolwine at Los Angeles, with a view of having Watson questioned regarding the Massachusetts murder.

At the time of her death Mrs. McCloud was a widow, while Harvey, who lived near her home, was seventeen or eighteen, according to Mrs. Ackerman. She claims Harvey married an Anna Morrill of Mechanic street, Shelburne Falls, who disappeared a short time later.

ASK FREIGHT REBATE ON IRON SENT TO CANADA

That freight charges of the Seaboard Air Line and other carriers on Bezuzite ore from the United States to Canada were too high during the war in the contention of the Royal Bank of Canada, officials of which today asked Examiner Royal K. McKenna of the United States Interstate Commerce Commission for a return of some of the money paid, at a hearing in the Federal Building. Some of the ore was shipped from Andersonville, Georgia; to Richland, Ontario, and the bank officials through counsel, Edgar J. Rich and Linnel A. Norman of Boston, declared the freight charges were "unreasonable." Examiner McKenna said he would submit the case to the Interstate Commission at Washington.

MEDFORD MAN FIGHTS DYNAMITING CHARGE

Edwin E. Graves, of Medford, indicted in Illinois in connection with the dynamiting of buildings in Chicago, was today released on $5,000 bail. Graves says thre is no evidence to show he was in Chicago at the time the crime was committed. He also declares, through his counsel, that Governor Coolidge acted on evidence no legally competent in extradition proceedings. Graves' counsel appeared before Judge Pierce and secured the writ of habeas corpus. Sureif was furnished by Phedolphius Twomey of Watertown.

TRY THIS FOR ECONOMY

"Conserving," "Economy" and "Thrift" are the presentday watchwords and well they may be. Are you conserving your health? Are you economical in buying treatment for disease? You should be! If your stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood are not right in every sense, you should at once begin a treatment to restore good, healthy conditions. Sulphur, cream of tartar and herb extracts in a sugar-coated form, called Sulpherb Tablets is the surest relief that is economical. Get them in sealed tubes from druggists. Sulpherb is the name—not "sulphur." Mrs. J. J. Devlin, 518 W. 162nd St., New York City, writes: "I would also like to say I find your Sulpherb Tablets O. K. and am very much pleased to recommend to all my friends, etc."

COMPLETE CRIPPLING OF LAWRENCE MILLS IS PREDICTED

Lawrence, May 7.—A massed membership vote, virtually a sympathy strike vote, will be cast by the 12,000 members of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America Local, on Saturday, when a mass meeting will be held in Eagle Hall to decide what action the organization will take on the mill engineers' strike.

If affirmative action is taken on the question, it is probable that Lawrence, next Monday morning, will face a sympathy strike resulting in a complete shutdown of the textile industry in the city.

The Central Council has been granted full power to act in the matter. Leaders in the council declare that the sentiment of the greater part of the membership is strongly in favor of assisting the engineers in the strike.

The conservative element, including the American-speaking members of the local, are strongly against any action on the part of the organization that would result in a sympathy strike.

Victory Claimed by Striking Engineers

Lawrence, May 7.—Victory is claimed by the striking mill engineers who remained away from work in the Lawrence mills the first day of a strike for shorter hours and more money which may result in a tieup of the large mill plants.

Mill officials deny the statements that eighty-five engineers struck the first day and assert that they are in the fight to a finish with the feeling that they can defeat the tieup plans of the union.

In one of the larger mills four firemen quit their work in sympathy with the striking engineers, who claim they are obliged to work sixty to sixty-six hours a week for a pay equal to the regular mill operatives, who work about forty-five hours a week. The strikers claim that the American Woolen Co. lost eleven engineers.

Union officers are strong in the conversion that the strike is a success. They estimate that the remainder of the engineers will soon join forces to effect a complete crippling of the mills inside of a week.

Were it not for the fact that unlicensed engineers were at work in their places the strikers contended that the mills would have been closed down tight.

If the demands are not granted members of the striking union assert that a sympathetic strike will ensue, pulling out all union firemen in every mill where the strike is now on.

The chief engineers were allowed to remain at their posts in the plants to safeguard life and property, and every possible disaster as a result of inexperienced and unlicensed men managing the engines.

It was impossible to learn to what extent the mills are affected. Organizer Arthur M. Huddell of Boston, first vice-president of the international union, is here to take charge of the strike.

Will Debate Bakers' Strike in Haverhill

Haverhill, May 7.—To prevent serious trouble and a general tieup of bakeries, restaurants, hotels and boarding houses, Bakers Local, No. 41, International organization of bakers, with which the striking bakers of the city are affiliated, issued a challenge to the Master Bakers' Association to appear at a public debate at Labor Temple, tonight, to thrash out the strike situation and to submit facts to the public.

The Cooks' and Waiters' Union, Retail Clerks' Union, Central Labor Union and Shoe Workers' Protective Union, have endorsed the strike and are ready to give their full support. It is proposed to have representatives from these organizations at the meeting.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The latter rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

WET GOODS GO FAST IN LONDON

American Tourists Are Rapidly Consuming Supply of Champagne and Whiskey

By Universal Service.

London, May 7. — The tremendous increase in the consumption of champagne, cocktails and whiskey, due to the invasion of England by American tourists, is making startling inroads into the "wet" stocks of London's principal hotels, clubs and bars.

With more than 50,000 Americans landing in London during the past month, Arturo, maitre d'hotel of the Savoy, said today:

"More than 1,500 bottles of champagne were consumed at luncheons and dinners in our hotels last month. That is an increase of 100 per cent over March.

The newest cocktail dispensed at the Savoy bar, the famous rendezvous of Americans in London, where sooner or later all male visitors from the states meet, is called "The Swamp." It's the first thing Americans call for, and it has a mighty "kick." They say it prolonges indefinitely the rolling sensation experienced on ocean steamships.

Commenting on the drink situation here, Lenore Harris, the New York actress, who is soon to appear in London in "Our Betters," said to the correspondent:

"Champagne is remarkably cheap here. Just think, I sold in New York my entire cellar stock, which had been presented to me by admirers. I got an average of $75 a bottle. You can buy the same champagne here for $6 a bottle."

Whiskey sells for 20 cents a "shot" in London. Cocktails fetch 30 cents a "peep," while the best white and red wines are obtained for $3 a bottle.

PUTS PAPER SCARCITY UP TO ADVERTISERS

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Consumption increases due to demands of advertisers at a time when production of print paper is not increasing was given as a reason for print paper scarcity by Stanley Claque, manager of the Audit Bureau of Circulation before the Senate print paper subcommittee.

Claque denied statements made that production has increased. "Legislation is not needed and would not be effective," he said. "Papers should be forced to discontinue sending papers on expired subscriptions."

LYNN TEACHER ACCEPTS LEXINGTON HIGH BERTH

Lexington, May 7.—Albert E. Higgins, commercial teacher at the Lynn English High School, has resigned, to become head of the commercial department of the Lexington High School, to which position he has been elected by the school committee. Higgins is a Lynn man. He is a graduate of the Lynn Classical School and the State Normal School at Salem.

SPRINGFIELD CYCLIST INSTANTLY KILLED

Springfield, May 7.—Alexander Black, twenty-four, employed by the Hendee Motorcycle Manufacturing Company was instantly killed when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an auto truck. Witnesses say Black was going at a terrific speed when the accident occurred. The police released the truck driver after an investigation.

Women's Wooden Hat Fad Is Decried

By Universal Service.

Washington, May 7.—F. S. Risdale, secretary of the American Forestry Association, decried the tendency to make wooden hats for women a fad.

"The new fashion in hats would make deep inroads into our already over-taxed forest supply," he said. "It is to be hoped that hats will not be made from pulp wood which the publishers need so badly for print paper."

$4,158,385 PAID FOR DRYDOCK

Navy Department Takes Title to South Boston Basin From State

A check for $4,158,385.58 drawn upon the United States Treasury, completing the payment for the big drydock at South Boston, was today paid to John N. Cole, chairman of the State Department of Public Works, by Commander John Irwin, Jr., disbursing officer at the navy yard.

Commander Irwin arrived at the State House, accompanied by a marine guard.

Of the total amount, $3,107,366.92 is for the drydock itself, while the remaining $1,051,018.66 is for land.

The drydock was recently taken over by the navy.

TO ACT ON RENT BILL TUESDAY

Joint Committee Expected to Report Measure Giving Relief to Tenants

At its executive session today the Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature postponed action on remedial rent legislation until next Tuesday.

At that time, it is believed, the committee will report out a bill giving scope for drastic action, and affording adequate relief to rent payers, while assuring landlords of a square deal.

A sub-committee of the Joint Committee on Judiciary has been devoting its entire attention to the matter of remedial rent laws for the past week, and has made an exhaustive, although brief, study of the subject.

Following the presentation of the report of this sub-committee today, the joint committee decided to put off definite action until the first of the week.

Tenant Is Told to Resist Eviction

Faced with only forty-eight hours' notice to quit his apartments, a Jay Bay tenant was instructed by Attorney Daniel J. Daley to fight eviction "by force, if necessary," according to a letter filed today with the Mayor's Committee on Rents and Housing.

The letter is addressed to John A. Cronin, No. 124 Massachusetts avenue, the landlord of apartments at Nos. 42-47 Batavia street rented by Peter Hynes.

According to Hynes, his rent has been continuously increased and he is now ordered to vacate. Cronin's story is that Hynes rents two apartments for which he paid $57.50 each last January, is paying $42.50 now, and for which the rent is to be raised to $50. Cronin declared that this was not a "profiteering" rate, as he furnishes light and heat.

Many other complaints were heard at the committee's headquarters today. A complaint was made against Harry Tucker, No. 14 Evelyn street, Mattapan, by Charles Corvin, a tenant, at the same address.

According to Corvin, the rent for his small apartment was raised last June from $25 to $26; in August, to $28; and in October to $32, with a raise for one year. He charges that Tucker is seeking to violate the lease by raising his rent $10 a month. When he tendered the $33 due, the landlord, he avers, refused the money, demanding $45.

Corvin was advised by the committee to send the rent specified in the lease by registered mail.

Unions Back League of Tenants at Springfield

Springfield, May 7.—Mayor Adams will preside Tuesday night at a mass meeting of rent-payers in the Auditorium. The Rent Payers' Protective Association will be formed at that time. Councilman James E. Davis has volunteered his services as attorney in any suits brought against landlords by the organization. The matter is being pushed by the Central Labor Union.

The Chamber of Commerce has been invited to join the drive, but is not expected to.

Tearing Down Buildings Despite Rental Demand

New York, May 7.—While people are suffering from lack of housing, men are being paid $4 and $5 a day to work as house-wreckers. This was the statement today from Knights of Columbus headquarters, which sent seventy men in response to a call from a contractor for labor in house-wrecking at South Amboy, N. J. Farm labor is still scarce, according to the K. of C. employment service, while the demand remains normal.

WAGE ARGUMENT ON INCOME TAX

Elevated Quotes Returns to Show That Higher Fares Would Burden Public

Income tax figures were introduced as evidence at the Elevated wage hearing today to prove that the general public could not afford to pay the fares which higher wages for the carmen would make necessary.

Irving L. Shaw of the State Income Tax Department was the principal witness put on by H. Ware Barnum, counsel for the Boston Elevated. He said that this year not more than 173,000 men would have sufficient income to report.

Attorney Barnum announced that he would argue that with such a comparatively small number getting enough wages or salary to report, a $2,500 wage for Elevated employes was unjust to the general public.

Other witnesses at the hearing, which is proceeding before the Elevated Arbitration Committee at the State House, were Roswell F. Phelps, director of statistics for the State Department of Labor and Industries, and Dr. William A. Brooks, former medical supervisor for the Elevated.

Mr. Phelps testified as to the number of men enlisted in "gainful occupations in Massachusetts.

Dr. Brooks denied that there were any serious "vocational" diseases among carmen. He gave statistics to show that the work was not unhealthful.

IRISH ORATORS TO SPEAK HERE

D. T. O'Connell to Address Central Council; Clubs Plan Sunday Sports

Advices have been received from the Washington office of the Friends of Irish Freedom by the executive board of the Central Council of Irish County Associations that Daniel T. O'Connell will address the representatives of the thirty-six clubs of the latter organization at a meeting to be held in the Deacon Building, Washington street, South End, Tuesday evening, May 18.

President John J. Foley of the Irish county clubs, who will preside at the meeting, announces that plans are under way for a mass meeting on Boston Common at a date to be announced and at which it is expected to have Judge Daniel F. Cohalan of New York, Edward F. McSweeney and other noted speakers answer the arguments of the foes of Ireland. A parade of the different Irish organizations prior to the meeting is planned.

Announcement is also made that the Central Council is anxious to take advantage of the Sunday sports law by forming a Gaelic football team hurling league, cricket club and baseball nine and calls upon subordinate branches to submit names of qualified members to make possible these organizations. The matter will be definitely settled at the next quarterly convention of the council and delegates are asked to come prepared with a report of their lodges dealing with the proposition.

The George Washington Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom will hold a public mass meeting at St. Cecilia's Guild Hall, Belvidere street, Back Bay, on Tuesday night. Speakers will include Dr. Anna O'Sullivan of Boston, Thomas F. Phelan of Roxbury and Harold J. Sullivan and Daniel J. Harkins, Boston College orators who toured the State speaking in the recent Irish bond sale drive.

Joseph F. Mulligan, president of the branch, will be the chairman of the meeting. Musical entertainment will be provided by Walter Downey and William Bigley of the Boston College Glee Club. Morgan Ryan of the Boston College Dramatic Society will entertain with readings and Miss Ethel Prior of the Back Bay, pianist, will contribute to the musical program.

On Friday evening, May 14, a new branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom will be formed at a meeting in the Martin School hall, Huntington avenue, Roxbury. Daniel J. Foley will be the speaker and Thomas G. Kerwin will preside.

Newton Irish Friends Endorse Mason Bill

The St. Patrick's branch, Friends of Irish Freedom, in Village Hall, West Newton, last evening, adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, tragic news from Ireland indicates that the British government has decided on a fresh assassination and atrocity in its latest effort to subjugate the Irish nation; be it

"Resolved, that we, citizens of the United States and members of St. Patrick's branch, Friends of Irish Freedom, West Newton, Mass., in meeting assembled, earnestly urge our government to take steps in the name of humanity, and in payment of the great debt of gratitude owed to the Irish race and to its dead, whose blood spilt on every battlefield of our beloved country in pleading this cause to end the abominable rule of the British government in Ireland, be it further

"Resolved, that the Mason bill now pending in Congress be immediately passed so that aid and comfort be given to the Irish people who, emulating the example of the American patriots of 1776 are valiantly struggling to attain their liberties. Be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be mailed to the honorable secretary of state, Washington, D. C., and to every Senator and Congressman from this State at Washington."

GERMANY NOW 'COMING BACK'

Envoy Declares Country Is on the Way Toward Great Prosperity

By International News Service.

Paris, May 7.—Germany has reached and passed her lowest point and has begun the upward climb which is destined to place her once more among the foremost nations of the earth, according to Herr Mayer, German charge d'affaires in Paris, who has returned from a trip to Berlin.

Herr Mayer has a decidedly optimistic view of conditions east of the Rhine.

"Germany has passed her lowest point and is now coming back," he said. "Coal production has been resumed on a large scale and has reached the point where it was before the Kapp revolution. Our railroad service has been greatly improved and there is a better spirit among the workers."

Herr Mayer declared he informed Premier Millerand that it would be impossible for Germany to decide until next year the amount she is able to pay the allies annually under the treaty. Parliament has adopted a new taxation program, but it is impossible to estimate the revenue it will bring in before it is collected at the end of the financial year.

It is useless, according to Mayer, to expect that Germany can reach the point of fullest production until the allies fix the total amount of her indebtedness.

"We are ready to pay all we can, but it is not possible to state the amount," he said.

For Acid Stomach Drink Hot Water

To Neutralize Dangerous Acid, Sweeten Stomach, Stop Indigestion

...of dyspeptics, sufferers from acid stomach, gas, wind or flatulence, gastric catarrh or heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they ever had such stomach trouble. A cupful taken at bed time relieves that forlorn, sinking feeling in the stomach. A teaspoonful of the food in the stomach, combined with the digestive fluids supplied to the stomach by hot water, increases the blood supply. Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained at any reliable drug store in either tablets or powder, instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.—Advertisement.

PREDICT DROP IN CLOTHING

Wool Dealers Say Slump in Their Goods Means Cheaper Suits

A break in wool prices and t[he] of clothing inside of sixty days was predicted today by Robert L. [Ja]cy of the wool firm of Sh[a]mberg on Summer street. [Ja]cy. Already the wool market has [be]gun to slump and he could [fo]resee a steady drop shortly.

"The slump has said is more [pro]nounced in the finer grades [of] wool which have been featured [by] the consuming public for finer [and] more costly grades. We simply can[not] be interested in grades and [will] not get the finer grades to supply the mills.

"Some of the lower grades that are much cheaper than the fine grades as serviceable but the public seems to think only of the higher priced goods. The only difference between some course and fine cloth is in the 'feel' and possibly the looks. What is the use of making up suits of lower grades of wool when the public clamors for only 'the best'

WILL WELCOME BREAK.

"However, there are many factors at work that indicate a drop in the whole wool market. With credit scarce, labor troubles galore, burden some taxes and profiteer being shooed from the house-tops, the upward climb is doomed. The sooner we have a break to more normal conditions the better it will be for us all."

Charles W. Ryder, vice president of Crimmins & Peirce, today said that while he did not look for a wide-open break in prices, he felt the peak had been reached and that conditions would gradually return to normal. He, too, blamed the public for the present high prices of clothing. He said he could not even quote a figure on coarser grades, because sales in the wool district are so infrequent.

"It is not a question of durability with the public," he said, "it is only price. They want the finer and more costly grades and we have to hustle to find them. In the meantime our South American and coarser wools are begging for buyers."

"LABOR GETS 70 PER CENT."

A member of the firm of Jeremiah Williams & Company expressed the same views as Mr. Ryder, and said choice Ohio delaines—the market barometer and finest wool in America—are practically extinct. "American mills are scouring the world Australia, New Zealand and South Africa—for finer wools," he added.

He said the farmer receives about

Lusitania Sunk Five Years Ago Today

Washington, May 7.—Five years ago today the world was startled by the news of the sinking of the Lusitania with a loss of [fi]fteen hundred lives.

Today found the United States still technically at war with Germany, with little prospect of an early peace.

It was not until a few weeks ago that the world learned the early story concerning the sinking of the giant Cunarder. Frank E. Mason, International News Service staff correspondent at Berlin, secured the official log of the submarine which sank her and gave it to the world the first authentic account of the fierce and for the three and a half pounds of wool in an average suit that retails for $60. The other $54 is taken up in middlemen before it reaches the consumer, as said and he figured that only 21 per cent of the cost of a suit is for labor.

John D. Ellsworth, 59 years old, residing at the American House, Sumner street, East Boston, was found guilty today in the East Boston Court, of larceny of a purse and $48. He was fined $60 and appealed.

Mrs. Pauline Severini alleged that Ellsworth picked up a pocketbook belonging to her dropped on Border street. [Th]e witness identified Ellsworth [as] the man. Ellsworth denies the charge.

24 P. C. ADVANCE IN FREIGHTS

Rail Lines West of Mississippi File Proposals for Higher Rail Rates

By International News Service.

Washington, May 7.—All railroads west of the Mississippi River today formally filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission proposals for advance in freight rates of 24 per cent. Their brief declared such an advance necessary to increase their revenues $355,882,000 a year the minimum necessary to bring their net income up to 6 per cent on a property investment of $5,963,953,000.

Samuel Felton of Chicago, chairman of the Western executives rate committee, in presenting the application declared present railroad facilities are inadequate to efficiently handle the growing traffic and there is need for an immediate outlay of hundreds of millions of new capital for equipment and improvements.

Necessaries of life are not being transported efficiently because of lack of equipment, Felton declared. He said estimates at the end of Federal control showed a need for immediate expenditure of $810,000,000 for equipment. The bulk of this amount must be raised by the railways on their own credit, Felton said.

There is a particular need for development of Western railways to

Shoe Cutters Strike for 25 Per Ct. Raise

Salem, May 7.—Because demands for a 25 per cent. increase were not adjusted, the entire force of eighty shoe cutters at the Donn B. Sargent shoe factory, Salem, and the P. A. Woodbury concern Beverly; twenty-five by the Peabody Shoe Company, Beverly, and twenty-five by Marston & Tapley, Danvers.

increase production of natural resources, Felton said.

The cost of new capital is more than 7 per cent per annum, Felton stated, and to finance needs of the railroads at a time of world wide credit, uncertainly will be a task of great difficulty even with an advance of their income basis to 6 per cent.

10,000 POSTS IN BONUS FIGHT

Suspecting Plan to Kill Bill, Service Men Will Open "Barrage" on Congress

Washington Headquarters, Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Hearst Newspapers, May 7.—High officials of the American Legion have reached the conclusion that the congressional snarl over the tax raising features of the proposed bonus legislation threatens the defeat of the measure at this session of Congress.

A spirited call to arms has been telegraphed by Chairman Thomas W. Miller of the national legislative committee to each of the forty-eight state departments of the legion instructing them to rally their members to aggressive action.

The telegram which has the approval of National Commander Franklin D'Olier will be relayed to each of the ten thousand local legion posts throughout the country.

It was prompted by the persistent and growing show of opposition to the tax raising features of the bill throughout the country, understands that differences over the method of taxation are being used indirectly to kill the bill even though a majority of Congress appears to recognize the justice of the beneficial features proposed.

Having formally requested Congress to pass the legislation, the American Legion does not now propose to permit its defeat through any mistaken notion as to the propriety of pressing for its enactment.

The American Legion takes the position that it has nothing to do with the provisions designed to raise the necessary revenue and suspects that the whole fight over taxation is a scheme to ditch the beneficial legislation urged by it.

In substance, the state commanders are advised by Chairman Miller that it is imperative that every local post be instructed to telegraph their members of the House that the American Legion, representing ex-service men of pressing for its enactment.

Rational Home Remedy For Wrinkled, Baggy Skin

Bathing the face in a simple lotion made as follows is the best thing known to disperse wrinkles, from the finest lines to the deepest crowfeet. Powdered saxolite, seven half pint. Your nearest druggist can supply the constituents. It is a natural and rational treatment, as it tends to remove the cause of those telltale signs of all coming age worry or ill health. Having both astringent and tonic properties the solution tightens the too loose skin and tends to nourish the underlying nerve tissue. This smooths out the wrinkles and gives the whole a firmer supporting foundation.

Obviously the effect must also reduce hanging cheeks, double chins and saggy necks. The remarkable prompt action of this harmless lotion is another commendable feature. Advertisement.

PARIS REFUSES $5,000 U. S. HAT

President Deschanel Declines Gift of American Millinery Society to His Wife

By Universal Service.

New York, May 7.—The request of the Retail Millinery Association of America, making a gift of hats to Mme. Deschanel, wife of France's President, has been brought to a halt—but not to Mme. Deschanel.

Mme. Deschanel [illegible] at that hat. This was made clear in cablegrams received in the [illegible] from President Deschanel positively refusing the honor of the proposed gift, the other from the Society for Improvement of the Millinery Art of Paris, which was not so positive.

The Paris society's schedule of reasons why Mme. Deschanel could not possibly wear an American made hat was based upon the fourteen points of artistic millinery freedom for France. There was a strong intimation that it would be little short of disgraceful for any woman, even the French President's wife, to wear a $5,000 hat.

"No hat worth more than $5,000 was ever made in Paris," read the cabled message. "The price is far exorbitant. And then, one readily see that the whole project of France accepting American hats is like 'carrying coals to Newcastle.' Paris has always made hats for the world, and it would be inappropriate for us to import a foreign piece of millinery."

As we said last week, we'd be glad to quote lower prices if possible, but to mark any of our merchandise down would mean a financial loss, as it would in the case of any merchant whose prices were right to start with.

We heard about price reductions being made by stores in New York, but after a personal investigation we find that the so-called $75 garments they marked down to $57.50 might well stand another 20% reduction as they are identically the same as we've been selling all this season at $38 to $50.

These Kennedy Stores have never tried to see how much they could get for their merchandise, but how much they could give for the money, and how low they could keep their prices on reliable goods of known quality.

We never sold goods at so near to the cost price as we are doing now. There's scarcely anything in our stock that can be replaced today at the price it's marked. Our profits are actually only about half what the Government has ruled is legitimate.

This is not philanthropy on our part. Months ago we placed orders at much more favorable figures than today's prices, and are merely passing these advantages along to our customers. That's our idea of good business—the smallest possible profit on the largest possible volume—and that's the principal reason we're not complaining about business.

You can come here today, or next week, or any time in the future, as you always have in the past, and find one of the largest assortments of Good Clothes and Fixings in the United States at prices that can't be any lower, whether the ticket says $30 or $50 or $60, because they're already as low as that particular quality can be sold for.

WILSON SNATCHES MIDDLEWEIGHT CROWN FROM MIKE O'DOWD

OUTPOINTS RIVAL IN 12 ROUNDS

Former Title-Holder Is Dropped in Second Round by the New Champion

By JACK CONWAY.

Johnny Wilson of Charlestown is today middleweight champion of the world, as a result of his wonderful victory over Mike O'Dowd of St Paul in twelve thrilling rounds of fighting at the Pennsy A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building.

The decision which made Wilson a title holder was rendered by Hector McInnis of South Boston. McInnis is a close friend of Paddy Mullins, O'Dowd's manager. He was Mullins' choice as referee. McInnis has been the third man in the ring in all of O'Dowd's Boston bouts since the St. Paul man became a champion. He has even been referred to as "O'Dowd's hand-picked referee."

McInnis, however pointed to Wilson's corner. He did so because it was his honest opinion that the Charlestown warriors brilliant fighting for twelve rounds against one of the greatest champions in the history of the ring entitled him to the decision.

It was announced that both men weighed in under 160 pounds. Wilson, according to Marty Killilea, his manager, was at 158 pounds, which leaves no cloud to his title.

O'Dowd Could Have Been Given Draw

O'Dowd could have been given a draw, as Wilson's margin was a mighty small one. Perhaps a draw would have been the best verdict when it is taken into consideration that O'Dowd was the aggressor in most of the rounds. Wilson, however, scored a clean knockdown in the second round. He also made his opponent mind repeatedly while he himself scored with numerous clean blows, which had terrific power behind them.

What edge there was in the contest was in Wilson's favor. In championship battles it is customary to give a hairline decision where possible. Referee McInnis undoubtedly took this into consideration when he pointed to Wilson's corner.

Champion Seemed Sure to Win at End of Tenth

At the end of the tenth round it looked as though O'Dowd was going to win easily. At this stage of the game he was fighting at a wonderful clip. Spurred on by the cheers of his admirers Wilson staged a great finish and won the honors by a slight margin in the last two rounds. This rally was probably what caused McInnis to give the Charlestown man the verdict.

More than 7,000 fans saw the title change hands. It was the largest gathering to witness a ring contest in Boston other than the huge throng which packed Mechanics Building the night of the Kirby Muggsy battle.

Strange to say it was an O'Dowd crowd. There were hundreds of Wilson rooters on hand but the bulk of the crowd was with O'Dowd. Mike has made himself mighty popular here as a result of his willing style of milling and by the way, he has clashed with all-comers since he won the middleweight title by knocking out Brooklyn Al McCoy.

When the battle was over and Wilson was pronounced champion he was tendered a wonderful ovation. He was lifted on the shoulders of some of his admirers and carried from the ring in triumph. It was a glorious procession from the ring to the dressing room for the new title holder. He was deserving of the applause of the crowd, for he had put up one of the most courageous battles ever witnessed in a Boston ring. He is the first Boston champion since the days when Honey Mellody was boss of the welterweights.

O'Dowd fought his usual aggressive battle. One of the big moments of the fight occurred in the second round when O'Dowd was rushing to close quarters. As the champion came in, Wilson crossed his left to his opponent's jaw. O'Dowd dropped to the canvas, but was on his feet before the referee could start the count.

Young Gould of Brockton won and lost a bout. He first stopped Young Blades of Woonsocket in a punch and then lost a decision to Buddy Williams of Beverly in another match. Steve Kennedy of Lawrence kayoed Battling Richards of Cambridge in two rounds while Young Donahue of the South End defeated Jack Gray of the West End in two frames.

Farmer Sullivan Meets Billy Carney at C. A. C.

By RINGSIDE.

Farmer Sullivan, sparring partner to Mike O'Dowd will make his Boston debut tonight when he clashes with Billy Carney of New Bedford in one of the three ten-round bouts at the Commercial A. A. show. Sullivan has a big jaw and a punch to go with it, and unless he is a false alarm he will furnish Carney plenty of opposition.

Young Gould of Brockton weighs in at one hundred and fifty pounds while Carney scales at 158. Sullivan is under ten pounds of the 160 limit. Shepard of New York is matched to box against Cleveland Johns over the ten-round route.

Young Hanna and Young Foster, both of Boston, will furnish the six-round preliminary.

Owens and Hayes to Meet at Cambridge

Pittsimmons of Chelsea in a twelve-round bout at Marlboro tonight. Lynch proved his class when he gave Jimmy Wilde a torrid battle for twenty rounds. Pittsimmons has a big punch to his credit with Lynch and Langford, and he will finish in front of Lynch.

Owens, Cambridge bantamweight, was supposed to oppose Chick Hayes of Woonsocket as an opponent at the Commercial A. A. show tonight, but Hayes refused to go on account of the fact that Owens is in the feature bout of the show. Owens will appear in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Hayes will appear in the feature bout of the show. Owens will appear in the semi-final of eight rounds.

MUNICIPAL LINKS GOLFERS FORM ASSOCIATION

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Municipal links golf players who reside in New England are going to have a big day in Hartford on Saturday, September 4, when the first public links championship ever held in New England will be contested over the Goodwin Park 18 hole course.

At Worcester City Hall yesterday the New England Municipal Golf Association was organized with S. Wales Dixon, superintendent of recreation for the city of Hartford as first president, and Paul Carlson of Worcester as secretary and treasurer. An executive committee of the two officers and Joseph Burns of Boston, who appointed.

The first championship at Hartford will be at 36 holes medal play, to all the New England municipal links invited to send as many players as possible. The player returning the best card for the distance will be awarded a gold medal and the title of New England municipal links champion. The scores of the lowest ten golfers from each municipal club will be added to determine the team champion and the winners will be awarded a shield.

The Hartford course was awarded the tournament because it is equipped holes and in the best shape of any of the public links in New England. On the day of the tournament the course will be reserved for contestants and the Park Department of Hartford will serve lunch on arrival to the players. An effort will be made to have Stamford send players as Boston, Worcester and Hartford have guaranteed representation.

The Worcester meeting considered inviting New York and Philadelphia to send teams for the tournament, but it was decided to make it strictly a New England event the first year and if it proved successful to broaden it as Eastern championship in 1921.

A LESSON IN ECONOMY

"HERE'S a simple problem that has been solved by a revolution."

"WHAT'S the revolution?"

"THE P&Q has revolutionized the old method of selling Clothing, by doing away with the middleman's profit, the drummer's commission, the losses by charge accounts, all of which the wearer had to pay."

"ARE these the reasons I always saved money on P&Q Clothes?"

"SOME of the reasons—P&Q (Price and Quality) Clothes are sold direct to the wearer at one small profit, and furthermore the Up-Stairs rents reduce the overhead which decreases selling expense."

"WELL now I understand why I get such great values, but how do you account for the wonderful styles they show?"

"VERY simple! Every P&Q (Price and Quality) garment is designed and tailored in the P&Q Sunlight Tailor-plant in New York — the spirit of the great Metropolis permeates every line and every pattern."

"NO wonder so many of my friends wear P&Q Clothes and are so enthusiastic about them."

Red Sox Take First Place, Braves Close Up and Evers Signs as B. C. Coach.

By NICK FLATLEY

Boston is again the capital of the baseball universe. The Red Sox are leading the American League, the Braves are flying toward the ridge of the National circuit, and Johnny Evers has been nominated to coach Boston College. 'Twould seem as if all three—Sox, Braves and Jawn—had finally settled into the proper groove.

The Sox have shown enough to make it a cinch that they will be in the Johnson argument until the season becomes a habit; the Braves have announced to the universe that hustling them is quite a rugged proposition, and Troyjawn is in a spot that naturally fits him.

With all that to think about, the Boston fan hasn't a thing to do but hope that some warm weather will visit these parts and stay longer than Bobby Dyson lasted with Jimmy Wilde, for instance.

After seeing nothing but gloom shoved before the snow departed, and getting nothing but thrills since the [illegible] started, and Boston fan has a little calm, and gentle exuberance coming his way.

Which awakes us back to the fact that the baseballing were present once more at the Fenway [illegible]m and it shaped up like another [illegible] afternoon for the Athletics. [illegible] Nash [illegible] Perry [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

CHAPTER VII.

ARTHUR PAIGE and his sister had dined alone that evening, to Miss Cynthia's delight. She liked to have her brother to herself.

For in spite of her peculiar nature, she loved Arthur. He was five years her junior, and she had always considered him her especial property. There is in every woman a strain of the maternal, and Cynthia Paige had lavished upon her brother an affection both sisterly and maternal.

It was, however, an exacting and unleasing devotion. Now that her niece was grown, the spinster was continually afraid the girl would usurp what was legitimately the property of the older woman.

She glanced across the table this evening with a smile that was fraught with genuine satisfaction.

"Arthur, my dear, this is nice, isn't it?"

He returned her smile. "I have no doubt, my dear sister, that it is—but to what 'this' do you especially refer?"

She would not show that she was hurt by his lack of comprehension. "Our being here alone like this. It reminds me of the good old days when we had only each other for company."

The man did not answer immediately. He was struggling with an effort to be both tactful and truthful—not an easy thing to accomplish.

His cheeks were almost boyish in their roundness and fresh coloring. In comparing his sister's face with his sister's thin visage, one wondered how children of the same parents could be so unlike. In character they were as dissimilar as in appearance.

"Well," he said at last with an embarrassed laugh, "you and I have always enjoyed each other's company. Yet, to be honest, I must acknowledge that I miss the little girl."

"I am sorry you miss her, Arthur," with some asperity. "I do not flatter myself that she is missing us."

Diametrically Opposed

"I hope she is not," Arthur said heartily. "I sometimes worry lest she may get too demure and old-fashioned living with an elderly couple like us. That is why I am glad when a young chap calls on her or when she goes with people of her own age. She always has a good time at Daisy Greenwood's. They are fond of her there—and no wonder!"

"Arthur"—the sister spoke gravely—"does it ever occur to you that you may be spoiling Barbara?"

"No," was the stout answer. "It does not. She is not the kind to be easily spoiled."

"I beg your pardon," Miss Cynthia disagreed. "Anybody would be spoiled if she had some one saying such things as you just said—and you say them to her face, too. Moreover, you are constantly giving things to her and doing things for her."

"And why should I not?" the man argued. "She is the only young creature that you and I have. I am not a rich man, but I have enough to provide for all three of us comfortably, and to allow the child some of the pleasures that girls of her age should enjoy.

"And that reminds me of a matter I have been meaning to speak to you about for some time. In the Fall, when we settle down again for the Winter, we must entertain Barbara's friends occasionally. The child goes to their houses, but we seldom have the boys and girls here for a frolic—never, in fact. Barbara sees too much of older folk. Now, for instance, John Brandon comes here frequently and talks that age in not"——

He stopped abruptly, for there had come to his sister's lips a smile that was arresting in its quality. It was a most sardonic.

"What is the matter?" he demanded.

Miss Cynthia laughed mirthlessly. "I do not intend to make fun of you, my dear brother; but what a blind creature you are!"

"Blind! How?"

"Can't you see that Barbara likes to have John Brandon come here? Can't you see that she would rather be with him than with any young man in the world?"

The Brother Is Astonished

Arthur Paige dropped his knife and fork with a crash and sat staring at the speaker. "What do you mean?" he asked hoarsely. "Do you mean that John Brandon has an dog——"

"Wait!" Miss Cynthia held up an imperious hand. "Do not speak so loud." What I mean is just this John Brandon is in love with Barbara. I should think that even you could see that. And she encourages him."

"Encourages!" Paige repeated blankly. "She cannot know that he is in love with her. It never occurred even to me."

His sister smiled again. "She would be a fool if she did not know it, and Arthur, since she cares for John Brandon, she has a right to follow the dictates of her heart."

When Arthur Paige spoke again it was musingly.

"John Brandon and my little girl!"

"Why not?" Miss Cynthia retorted. "He is a Christian gentleman and your friend."

"Yes—but she is only a child."

'She is twenty," the aunt said, practically, "and no child, either."

The meal was finished without further remark on either side. But as the pair left the table, Paige spoke slowly, almost painfully.

"Cynthia, do you really believe Bab loves John?"

"Well," was the tart reply, "if she does not, she is a shameless flirt—that's all."

To which assertion Arthur Paige could offer no demur. He supposed Cynthia understood her own sex. He himself did not.

The Smart Points of Fashion

That it is possible for one woman to look smart and another commonplace with almost the same clothing is almost too obvious to mention. But to overcome the difficulty is another matter unless one knows just what to do. An article in April Good Housekeeping shows how some of the results are achieved. To quote: "If the shoulders of coats are narrow, see that yours are narrow, not nearly narrow, if frills are the mode, wear frills, if tunics are long let yours be long; if there is a certain tilt to the hats, a certain kind of bar, a certain length of width of skirt, choose that which is new."

Different Explanations

"I have a splendid lot of students this year," said a professor of chemistry gloomily. "Here's a paper which shows plainly that the boy who wrote it does not understand that expansion and contraction are contradictory terms. They are not always, said a professor of economics quietly. "Now in my classes I find it necessary to state explicitly the fact that the constant contraction of debts is sure to result in their expansion."

He Didn't Know

"My dear," said Mrs. Johnson, who had been married a year, as she beamed across the table at her husband, "tell me what first attracted you to me? What pleasant characteristic did I possess which placed me above other women in your sight?" And Mr. Johnson simply replied, "I give it up."

The physician who originated the Anti-Fat treatment known to physicians and druggists as "five-grain tablets Arbolene" is being praised and thanked by scores of women in the class known as "society devotees."

A literary woman in Los Angeles, being so highly elated over her success in reducing, has written a clever little poem, which recites the facts and expresses deep gratitude so well. To safely and surely reduce from 20 to 60 pounds is easily accomplished when tablets Arbolene are used regularly. They are not drastic or dangerous, used as directed, but simply and surely dissolve the fatty elements and eliminate from the system. Also, they remove the craving for such foods as are not desirable for fat folks to use. Herein Arbolene is superior to all other anti-fat medicines, as it automatically overcomes the abnormal, perverted appetite for starchy foods, etc. Sold by all druggists in sealed tubes with full directions.—Advertisement.

JANET

JANET, sometimes spelt Janette, bears no relationship to Jane, paradoxical as it may seem As early as the thirteenth century

Copyright by Harris & Ewing

Genet appeared as a feminine proper name, long before Jane, Joan or Johanna were known to us. In the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries Gennet made her appearance, and by a process of evolution there came Janeta, Janette and finally Janet, though the latter is by far the most modern form of the name.

History, which records innumerable instances of Janet and her derivatives being used with extreme popularity in those early times, likewise chronicles the amusing and almost unbelievable story of the Willelmus Richardson and his wife Christina who had a family of eighteen children and became so destitute for names for this extraordinary brood that they had two Johannes, two Willelmuses two Christinas and three Janets. Strange to relate, this was not an unusual custom of duplication in those days.

Genista was an old Frankish form of Janet which was exceedingly popular; indeed, it is thought to be so direct a forerunner as to be conclusive proof that Janet sprung from it and from Genets—not from any form of John. Genista is another early form that appears in old Frankish chronicles. Undoubtedly Janet was left behind in France and became confused with Jean, hence the erroneous modern belief that the two names are interchangeable. Like its offspring Jessie, Janet means "grace of the Lord."

Worn by one who has a mystic right to it, a happy marriage is promised. Monday is Janet's lucky day and 6 her lucky number

An unforgettable poem was written by an early poet to "Janette":
"Your eyes had a swimming glory, Janette,
Revealing the old, dear story—my pet;
They were grey with that changeful tinge of the sky
When the trout leaps quickest to seek the fly,
And they matched with your golden hair—my pet."

The Young Diana

An Experiment of the Future

By Marie Corelli

"WHAT ideal?"

This little moonlight trip on the lake?"

"Certainly," she answered, "it has been very warm all day—it will be cool on the water."

Dimitrius bethought himself of one of the teachings of the Rosicrucians: "Whoso is indifferent obtains all good. The more indifferent you are, the purer you are, for to the indifferent all things are One!"

Some unusual influence there was radiating from her presence like a fine air filled with suggestions of snow. It was cold, yet bracing, and he drew a long breath as of a man who had, sealed some perilous mountain height and now found himself in a new atmosphere. She walked beside him with a light swiftness that was almost aerial—his own movements seemed to him by comparison abnormally heavy and clumsy. Seeking about in his mind for some ordinary subject on which to hang a conversation, he could find nothing. He felt he became as clumsy as his feet. Pushing her hood a little aside, she looked at him.

"You had a garden party today?" she queried

"Yes—if a few people to tea in the gardens is a garden party," he answered.

Very Dull Affair

"That's what it is usually called," said Diana, carelessly. "They are generally very dull affairs. I thought so, when I watched your guests from my window—they did not seem amused"

"You cannot amuse people if they have no sense of amusement" he rejoined.

"Nor can you interest them if they have no brains. They walked among miracles of beauty—I mean the roses and other flowers—without looking at them; the sunset over the Alpine range was gorgeous, but they never saw it. Their objective was food—that is to say, tea, coffee, cakes and less—anything to put down the over-keen many of appetite. What would you? They are as they are made"

She offered no comment

"And you," he continued in a voice that grew suddenly eager and impassioned—"You are as you are made!—as I have made you!"

She let her head fall back and turned her face fully upon him. Its fairness, with the moonlight illuminating it, was of spiritual delicacy, and yet there was something austere in it as in the face of a sculptured angel.

"As I have made you" he repeated, with triumphant emphasis. "The majority of men and women are governed chiefly by two passions. Appetite and sex. You have neither Appetite nor Sex—therefore you are on a higher plane——"

"Than yours?" she asked.

The question stung him a little, but he answered at once:

"Possibly."

Cold Smile

She smiled—a little cold smile like the flicker of a sun-ray on ice. They had arrived at the border of the lake, and a boat with the picturesque lateen sail of Geneva was tied them with Vashe in Charge. Diana stepped in and seated herself among a pile of cushions arranged for her comfort—Dimitrius took the helm, and Vashe settled herself down to the management of the ropes. The graceful craft was soon skimming easily along the water with a fair light wind, and Diana in a half-reclining attitude, looking up at the splendid sky, found herself wishing that she could sail on thus, away from all things present to all things future! All things past seemed so long past! — she scarcely thought of them—and "all things future"!—What would they be?

Dimitrius, seated close beside her at the stern, suddenly addressed her in a low, cautious tone.

"You know that this is the first week in June?"

"Yes"

"Your time is drawing very near, he went on. "On the evening of the twentieth you will come to me in the laboratory. And you will be ready—for anything?"

She heard him, apparently uninterested, her face still upturned to the stars.

"For anything?" she repeated dreamily—"For an End, or a new Beginning? Yes — I quite understand. I shall be ready"

"Without hesitation or fear?"

"Have I shown either?"

He ventured to touch the small hand that lay passively outside the folds of her cloak

"You—you have been brave, docile, patient, obedient," he answered. "All four things rare qualities in a woman—or so men say! You would have made a good wife, only your husband would have crushed you!"

She smiled.

"I quite agree. But what crowds of women have been so 'crushed' since the world began"

"The hair is useful as the mothers of the race," said Dimitrius

"The mothers of what race?" she asked

"The human race, of course!"

Wasted Energies.

Yes, but which section of it?" she persisted with a cold little laugh. "For instance—the mothers of the Assyrian race seem to have rather wasted their energies! What has become of that race which they bred and reared and fostered? Where is the glory of those past peoples? What was the use of them They have left nothing but burnt bricks and doubtful records"

"True!—but destiny has strange methods, and their existence may have been necessary

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE honeymoon is not actually over until that illuminating moment when a bride decides to exchange her chiffon negligee and pink satin mules for half a dozen bungalow aprons and a pair of flat heeled house-slippers.

A man may look upon the marriage certificate as "just a scrap of paper," but a decree of divorce is an expensive luxury, which he keeps locked away in the safety vault with his Liberty Bonds.

You can't make a man believe it, but the most tragic moment of marriage is that in which his wife asks him how she looks in her new Spring hat—and he stops to CONSIDER!

A husband is what's left of a bachelor after the nerve has been extracted—and alimony is what's left of a husband after the truth has been extracted.

Nothing makes a woman so indignant as to have you agree with her when she tearfully confides to you her real opinion of her husband.

This is the magic time of year, when a young man's soul sings the "Spring Song," his heart throbs to Lohengrin and his pulse beats a jazz tune.

"Dude," according to a woman, are Spring clothes that fail to create a sensation, engagements that fizzle out; weddings that fail to go off, and marriages that end in Reno.

The gods must love those little Spring romances which blossom in a man's heart. They die so young'

Wood Alcohol Poisoning

By Brice Belden, M. D.

WOOD-ALCOHOL poisoning is undoubtedly very common, and prohibition has merely accentuated this great evil.

The body converts this poison into another about eight times more fatal in its effects, namely, sodium formate. This accounts for the prolonged state of unconsciousness which follows even small doses of wood alcohol, and for the blindness which is so likely to follow this form of poisoning.

An idea of the frightful effect of the substance upon the human eye may be formed when it is known that complete destruction of the optic nerve has followed doses of from two to five teaspoonfuls.

In some cases, when the amount was very large or was taken upon an empty stomach, death occurred in a few hours, but as a rule it has not occurred for one or two days.

In nearly all cases there have been severe headache, nausea, violent and long-continued vomiting, profuse sweating, dilation of the pupils, delirium, and finally coma that continued for days,

The symptom that has aroused most interest is the partial or total blindness that has occurred in a large percentage of severe cases of poisoning by wood alcohol. This has quite frequently followed the use of Jamaica ginger adulterated with wood alcohol. Such patients may first notice a feeling of pain about the eyes, followed by a blurring of vision, and then, in from twelve to forty-eight hours, by blindness. After a few days there may be a gradual return of sight—to some, useful vision, only to be lost again in a short time or within a few weeks.

There are undoubtedly a good many people who are quite resistant to the action of wood alcohol, else there would be many more cases of poisoning, for the stuff has been used a good deal by unscrupulous liquor dealers.

In case of poisoning by wood alcohol the stomach should be washed out at the earliest possible moment.

A Few Points

Jane and I have noticed that many housewives, brazilian-pound they have tried Gossom's. Then they see they don't have to use the whole package unless they wish the extra in the pound. Even the 5 pennies are worth saving these days of H. C. L. And Gossom's Powdered Sugar help them the 5 pennies. Your grocer keeps Gossom's Sugar.

A Bit of Camouflage

Now, I think most mothers have trouble getting their little fingers to eat bread pudding. I always had, till I came about Uncle John's Syrup. And bread pudding, once a week, is an important item in the diet of the growing child. For the right kind has the egg, milk, butter and sugar so important to build bone and make blood for the active youngster.

But my children wouldn't eat it. "What—what—am I going to do?" I asked Jane. "The doctor says 'give 'em bread puddings.' But they just won't touch them."

"Make the puddings up with Uncle John's Syrup," she advised.

I did and I had no more trouble. They eat bread pudding now, and ask for more.

With Variations

There are so many little variations you can add to Custard Ready To Fry Fish Cakes, that my family would eat them every morning for breakfast and not get tired of them. For instance, they are delicious with bacon. I brown the Custard Ready To Fry Cakes delicately and place them in the center of the platter. Then I crisp, not too brittle, half a dozen slices of bacon and garnish the fish cakes with them. Lemon, thinly sliced, adds piquancy to the cakes and a sprig of parsley sets forth Custard Ready To Fry Fish Cakes so that no housekeeper need be ashamed to serve them to the most fastidious guest. And they are such a favorite with the children. Just ask your grocer

Gingerbread With Stade's Ginger

I wonder if all housekeepers will not agree with me that a gingerbread may be a delight to the eye upon the table, or a food of rich, nourishing value. How I make bitter complaint of too many pale and flat gingerbreads. It is all due to the ginger — so many gingers are either tasteless or too sharp. But gingerbread made with Stade's Ginger is just right to convert the humble gingerbread into a confection second to none. There is a romance to any gingerbread baked with Stade's. The crisp crust, the soft texture, the pungent ginger, make a cake that is just right to serve the children, with a glass of good milk.

As Much as Meat

My neighbor was remarking the other day on the large number of Hood's Milk bottles at my door. "Why," said she, "there are two more in my family, and I use three quarts less. I guess I must be overfeeding my family."

"Economy in Hood's Milk," I told her. "Its economy in the end. Any family where there are children should spend as much money for Hood's good, pure milk, as for meat. Each growing child should drink a quart of Hood's Milk a day. If they won't drink it, then give it to them as bread and milk or mush and milk. But never economize on your Hood's Milk bill." After you see how your children thrive on Hood's, you won't wish to. It is safe to form the Hood's habit.

Little Confections

There areasso many imaginative uses to which you can put Drake's Cake, I get thinking of what I did for cake at my children's last birthday party. You would have made a good wife, only your husband would have crushed you!"

She smiled.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM, SAYS CHICAGO BANKER

George M. Reynolds president of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago and a foremost Western banker in an interview to the business situation, that commodity prices have about reached their peak and that there is no cause for alarm. He said:

"Panic talk is idle and malicious. The tense credit situation does not denote monetary stringency. Money medium in the United States has increased more than 100 per cent since 1914. We hold about 40 per cent, of the world's gold supply, and reserves of banks as a whole, under the Federal reserve system are held above 40 per cent, compared with 12 per cent. to 15 per cent. the habit of England. During and since the war the resources of the Federal reserve system are considerably greater and its powers much broader.

"Our credit tightness is the aftermath of the war's high costs, and industrial disturbances have trebled credit requirements for a fifth piece of business. Bank funds available for commercial purposes are only half what they would be if the government's war financing had not required banks to carry the bulk of Liberty Bonds. Approximately half of the loans of Federal Reserve banks have been made to carry the bulk of Liberty Bonds. Approximately half of the loans of Federal Reserve banks have been made to carry the bulk of issues issued at low interest rates for thorough distribution among investors."

Will Soon Offer Stock

Bankers will soon offer $500,000 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Boston Manufacturing Co. at $98.50 a share as a sequel to the acquirement of Amory Browne interest by this corporation. The financing contemplated is to reduce the funded debt and produce working capital for an expanding business. The Boston Manufacturing Co.'s plants are at Waltham and its business is more than a century old, having been established in 1813. Its chief products is high grade gingham. Its 1919 sales totalled $5,857,375. Including the proceeds of the present financing, it is said that the company's net assets are equal to $218 and its net quick assets to $166 a share. After depreciation and Federal taxes, its 1919 net profits were 7.3 times its preferred dividends.

Oil Output and Consumption

March production of petroleum in this country reached the high record total of 36,491,000 barrels, but March consumption was 37,539,000 barrels. The March daily rate of consumption exceeded the country's daily rate of production by more than 240,000 barrels.

STEEL ISSUES ARE WEAKER

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, but prices were marked upward a little from the lowest level. Steels were among the weakest and were followed by motors, while oils were irregular at the best, with most of them showing losses. As a class rails showed some firmness. The market failed to display strength at any time during the forenoon and trading was rather quiet, first-hour transactions falling below 250,000 shares for a unit.

Money remained relatively plentiful, call loans renewing at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange was firmer at the opening, quotations being demand sterling $3.83¼, francs 13.52, lire 6.60 and marks .0193.

PM AT THE OPENING.

Offerings at the opening as rule stocks slowly sought a still lower level with the descent well started by half an hour. Most of the business from the outside was in the nature of sales and the covering which has lent the market strength this week was absent this morning. With a relatively low call rate and a large amount of money available for borrowers, the market took a downward course. Bears said this is plain indication that there is inherent weakness in the situation. The borrowing demand for stocks at the close yesterday was moderate. The recessional movement was general this morning. Crucible was the weakest of steel and Mexican Petroleum the strongest oil. Atlantic Gulf was conspicuous in the slump. Early declines ranged from fractions to more than six points. One or two point losses were common. While gains were scattered through the list the list was heavy. Before the end of an hour the market had rallied a little and become quiet. It was very professional in character.

WALL ST. FEARS NEW TAX.

Wall Street is much exercised over the proposal made to Congress for new taxation on stock transfers, and there will be representatives from the leading stock exchanges at the meeting to be held in protest in New York today. President Rentick of New York Stock Exchange says such a measure threatens the existence of security markets. Other things are causing uneasiness in financial districts, and not the least among them is the disastrous effect the railroad strike has had upon business. It has blocked transportation of urgently-needed supplies and put additional strain upon credits.

The silk situation is causing worry. A large amount of silk is tied up in raw material of this kind, for which the high cost is now being paid. How to get this money back when both the Japanese and American markets are believed to be overstocked is a serious question. A drop in the price of silk may be the beginning of commodity deflation. While that is denied, it might prove catastrophic if too sudden.

"SALLIES" GET MONEY BEFORE DRIVE OPENS

First contributions to the Salvation Army, Home Service fund drive, which opens next Monday, began to flow into New England headquarters at No. 67 Hanover street today. There were small ones—a dollar from a little girl in Sharon, a $5 bill from a woman, now a prominent resident of Greater Boston, who was once "down but not out," and received aid at one of the Salvation Army hostels. With them were a half-dozen others, with letters inclosed showing that they were from relatives and friends of men who knew the "Sallies" overseas.

COPPER MARKET WAS VERY DULL IN APRIL

The copper market was dull last month, April sales approximating but 103,000,000 pounds, compared with 320,000,000 in March, 95,000,000 in February and 328,000,000 in January. Sales for the first four months of 1920 aggregated about 750,000,000 pounds, and production is estimated at 550,000,000. The surplus has been somewhat reduced, and foreign and domestic buying is likely to wipe it out this year.

Besides, prospective foreign buying under credits arranged for, stood to be assisting a considerable tonnage. Small dealers who have been quoting 19 cents a pound for copper are now asking 19¾ to 19¾. Large selling interests are quoting 19¾ for May and June and 19¾ to 19¾ for July deliveries.

"The Coal Roads"

Supreme Court ruling that Reading must segregate its coal properties opens up fanciful possibilities in other railroads with coal holdings.

The exceptional market opportunity presented is tersely explained in The Current Market Review, just off the press.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, May 7.—Favorable cables were held largely accountable for the 10 to 20-point rise in cotton prices when the market opened. An offset were weather reports from the belt. Part of the gain was quickly lost and at the end of twenty minutes the list was about ten points above Thursday's closing level. Opening prices were: May, 40.90; July, 38.30; August, 37.65 bid; September, 37.40 bid; October, 35.80 bid; December, 35.25; January, 35.85; March, 34.85.

Speaking of NEW SAFETY PAPER and Money-Making: Did you ever know a man who was a real Money-Maker? If not, you have missed half of your life. If you know one, did you ever know him to COME AND ASK YOUR ADVICE before he made an investment? —Tood for thought—If you want to know WHY, it is because he USES HIS BRAINS—not yours—in making his highly profitable investments.

There is a good pointer for you. Try his plan. You say you will try anything once. USE YOUR BRAINS instead of asking some one else and he would do if he knew what to do anything. His answer always is: Do nothing, keep your money or you will lose it. That would be your answer to him if the positions were reversed. Why? Because neither of you will use your brains. That's what keeps you poor.

The men who use their brains, watch their chances and when they see the right opportunity, they take the money they have been saving. Invest it after investigating some good thing, and make a good profit. They get rich using their brains and their money. That is the only way to make money. First, save, then use your brains and invest in enterprises which are there with the goods.

NEW SAFETY PAPER is one of the good things that you should INVESTIGATE. You have often meant to. Then you fell back into that old rut and did nothing. The easiest thing in the world is to do nothing. Investigation is real work, but it develops brains, character and income. If anybody needs more income to satisfactorily bring expenses, YOU DO. There is only one way to get it and that is to USE YOUR BRAINS.

NEW SAFETY PAPER is growing and developing into a very exceptional Boston enterprise. For 15 months over 4,000 loyal investors have investigated and been satisfied that it is good enough for their money. No fraudulent skin game can stand the light of such an investigation in its own home town.

Write for booklet; INVESTIGATE; USE YOUR BRAINS.

Measures That Would Cure Most of the Troubles and Tendencies Which Distress and Alarm Us Today

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Primaries Add New Pathos to Mr. Colby's Moving Picture

Mr. Bainbridge Colby drew a pathetic picture at the New York Press Club's banquet of a great man hounded, by ravenish wolves—meaning thereby Mr. Wilson and those who are opposed to him.

We fear that political associations have corrupted Mr. Colby's good English. Wolves may be ravenous, it is true, but they do not "hound" their prey. Mr. Colby is customarily so nice in his use of figurative language that we suspect he must have been agitated by his own passionate eulogy of the great and lonely man in the White House.

It was indeed a sad picture he drew. But happily Mr. Colby is an optimist, and he found balm in Gilead for his overpowering grief.

Because Mr. Colby feels sure—and told his hearers so—that in November the people will rise, with millions of ballots in their avenging red right hands and put the ravening wolves to flight.

Mr. Colby knows that the people are only waiting the opportunity to show the great and lonely man in the White House how they reverently admire his glorious performances and how eager they are to have the League of Nations established.

We hate to throw ice water on burning enthusiasm and ardent optimism. But it happens that the people of several States have just had the longed-for opportunity to show how they feel about Mr. Wilson's performances and his League of Nations. But alas, for the great and lonely! The ravening wolves have won the verdict of the polls!

Down in Georgia—where Democratic allegiance is taken for granted—Mr. Palmer presented the cause of the great and lonely to the voters, and Hoke Smith and Tom Watson were the representatives of the ravening wolves.

And see what happened!

Look at the painful election returns!

Popular vote for the Ravening Wolves	95,755
Popular vote for the Great and Lonely One	47,731
Majority for the Ravening Wolves	48,024
Delegates elected by the Ravening Wolves	480
Delegates elected to support the Great and Lonely One	282
Majority of Ravening Wolves in State Nominating Convention	198

Arithmetic, as usual, has been too much for pathos and poesy.

Mr. Colby is indeed an optimist.

But optimism cannot make one-third a majority of the whole.

We suspect that when the November ballots are counted Mr. Colby will be able to paint another picture of the Great and Lonely, still as great as ever, but even more lonely.

Indeed, those Georgia figures are calculated to make somebody feel lonesome in advance of November.

Pondville Hospital Proves Value of Co-operation

Those who are studying hospital service and health work can well afford to take the record of the East Norfolk United States Public Health Service Hospital, commonly known as Pondville, as a standard.

Twenty-five per cent. of its afflicted population is engaged in useful production.

There is an average population of about 120 invalids at the institution, boys of the army and navy in the great war who have not recovered from the effects of it and many of whom are temporarily totally disabled.

So the record for voluntary industry is excellent.

Not 10 per cent. are obliged to keep to their rooms. The doctors and the nurses realize the value of good food, fresh air, mild exercise, good sports and companionship.

A special word about the nurses; they deserve it: They are a self-sacrificing lot of highly trained young women who are content to bury themselves in this out-of-the-way place that they may make a generous and intelligent contribution to humanity.

They are a fine type of patriot serving the needs of those who suffer.

For the spirit of co-operation between all elements of the staff, the Pondville hospital is a model.

Can you make a ukulele? Two boys at Pondville have made one of beautiful design and splendid tone.

Can you make a belt of knotted white silk? There is a sailor boy at Pondville whose workmanship in this line is wonderful. He can finish one of intricate design in four hours. The belts sell for $5. The patient craftsman cannot supply the demand.

Can you photograph and develop? Can you make a library cabinet? Can you make a shawl of wool or silk? Boys at Pondville make them, both the dainty filmy ones and those that make for warmth.

What these Pondville hospital patients do, boys in similar institutions do. If you care to show appreciation of their teaching and their skill the War Camp Community Service will give you the chance next Friday when they will conduct an exhibit at the new Army and Navy Club, Park square.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Funk Brothers

By S. E. KISER

HENRY FUNK'S a lawyer. Married? Yes; has three
Of the loveliest children in the town.
Last week Henry was arrested. Well, you see,
He has recently been slipping down and down.
He has acted merely as a kind of clerk
For a firm that put his name upon the door.
He might have quit the law and gone to work
Where his wages would have met his needs or more,
But instead of that he made unwise remarks,
Predicting that our government must fail
Unless it stopped the profiteering sharks,
So they've had to hustle Henry into jail.

THOMAS FUNK'S a preacher. He's having trouble, too.
His mind has been affected, it appears.
For a time he struggled, trying to pull through,
Although he was in debt up to his ears.
But he got to preaching sermons that were bad;
In fact, they were seditious, it is claimed.
If his children and his wife were poorly clad
That was no excuse for him to be inflamed.
He had the crust to say he wouldn't care
How soon an overturning came about;
He passed beyond the limit then and there,
And, of course, the trustees had to turn him out.

DANIEL FUNK'S a teller—or was, we'd better say;
He lost his job a week or two ago;
In the bank in which he worked, it seems, the pay
For taking money in is rather low.
So Daniel got to talking, and his talk
Was not the kind the public ought to hear.
They invited him one day to take a walk—
Talk, like many other things, you see, is dear.
Too bad about the Funks! Their children cry;
Their worried wives are overworked and ill.
But who's to blame for all the trouble? Why
Won't people learn to suffer and be still?

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—One day I sat down at the piano and composed a wonderful melody. I didn't know it was wonderful until one time I was playing it and a fellow came rushing over to the piano and said: "What is that you are playing?" I told him it was a composition of my own, and he told me he knew a man who would publish it for me. And so I went with him to the publisher and he took it on a royalty basis.

Then I went on my way to play in vaudeville, and while I was out in the little towns making a living my song became a big hit, but I didn't know it. And in one of the little towns a representative of the publisher came to me—and I'm not going to blame anybody or anything—and I didn't know the piece was a hit and I sold it outright for $100.

And now they've made a quarter of a million dollars out of the song, and once in a while a big Packard that was bought with part of it passes me by and never even offers me a ride, and I go home to my little two-room apartment and my wife meets me at the door and puts her arms about my neck and kisses me and I forget and am happy again. And then I sit down at the piano and play "Dardanella," my GIFT to the music world.

JOHNNY S. BLACK, Composer of "Dardanella."
125 West Forty-ninth street, New York City.

MY DEAR Johnny,
WHEN I came to your letter.
I SAID to myself,
"HERE'S ONE from a nut."
BUT I read it through,
AND THE very last line
SEEMED TO rise right up
AND HIT me so hard
THAT I went right down,
AND I asked the leader,
OF THE orchestra,
FOR THE title page,
OF "DARDANELLA,"
AND YOUR name was there,
AND WHATEVER it is,
THAT I'D like to say,
IS ALL mixed up,
AND YOU'LL have to read it,
IN THE little stars,
BETWEEN THE lines.
AND I know it's tough,
WHEN THE Packard goes by,
AND THE orchestras play,
AND THE records play,
AND FROM everywhere,
ALL OVER the land,
COMES THE melody,
OF THIS song of yours,
I KNOW it's tough,
TO JUST sit by,
AND COUNT the coin,
THAT OTHERS make,
AND THEN to know,
THAT IT should be yours,
BUT I'VE a belief,
THAT THE things worth while,
IN THIS little old world,
CAN NEVER be bought,
WITH DOLLARS and cents,
BUT CAN only be bought,
BY WHAT one gives,
OF THE things worth while,
AND WHATEVER you've earned,
YOU'LL SURELY get,
AND WHAT others have,
AND HAVEN'T earned,
WILL BRING them grief,

I THANK you.

A FATHER JEALOUS OF GIRLS' SUITORS

By Winifred Black

JEALOUS of his daughters' sweethearts.

Can't bear to see them in the house.

Walks up and down like a caged tiger whenever one of his girls is going to a party. No matter who's taking her—even when he knows that her mother is going right along, too.

Furious if a man calls up Mary, so furious that sometimes Mary sends word to the man that she isn't home, and slips over to the neighbor's and telephones him from there.

Outraged if Susan even mentions a man's name without saying a word in his favor, and perfectly unreasonable when his oldest son hints that he'd like to invite one of his classmates home for the week-end.

One classmate he allows—he's awkward and stupid and the girls hate the sight of him.

Father likes him very much, and often wonders why he doesn't run in more frequently.

No, he isn't against marriage in the abstract. He just can't bear to have any woman in the family look up to any man but himself.

How foolish we all are with our desperate clutching for our authority and demand for love.

If you want to lose a thing, they say in Chinese, hang on to it as tight as you can—or so we should translate it in the vernacular.

"He who clutches, will lose," say the Chinese.

I've known several of these jealous fathers—and the queer thing about them is that their daughters are always running away with some strange young man they met at the house of some comparative stranger, and father is always utterly amazed at the folly and ingratitude of youth whenever he drives one of his own girls into just such a marriage.

With a houseful of pretty girls and plenty of money to spend on parties, and lots of time and a heartful of love for them all, to have to sit by and watch the simple, natural process of life thwarted by an egotism of jealousy—it must be rather a hard lot, mustn't it?

Letters to the Editor

Democrat Endorses Johnson

Editor Boston American:

I read your article in the American about that grand old man from Missouri, Champ Clark, and he no doubt is a regular Democrat of the old school. I worked hard to try and nominate Clark at the Democratic convention, and if it were not for the treachery of some would-be politicians he would be President today.

At one time it looked as though the Missourian would win out, but things turned wrong, and the nomination went to Wilson.

The Democratic party is pretty well used up, and I think it impossible to elect any man bearing the Democratic tag. There is a great deal of sentiment for Hiram Johnson of California among the Democrats of this State, and he is the only man in the Republican ranks that could swing thousands of Democratic votes. I believe that if he is given a raw deal at the Republican convention at Chicago his friends will urge him to run as an independent. I have always voted the Democratic ticket but I take great pleasure in announcing that I am for Hiram Johnson for President.

Visitor Criticises

Editor Boston American:

Is the congestion at Boylston and Tremont streets never going to be dealt with? I am a frequent visitor to Boston, and I know it was acute five years ago. Today to get from Copley square to Washington street means a great waste of time and expense for taxis.

A VISITOR.

Hyenas, Not Souls
A Homeless Whiskey
Spare $500,000,000?
Respect Idols

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1920.)

A man who killed so many wives says he has "two souls," one wicked, the other good. Fortunately, both will be locked up together for the rest of his life. The good soul will have plenty of time to lecture the other, and that will have to get along without killing in the future.

In reality not "two souls" live together in that crazy mind, but savage memories of half a dozen hyenas, rattlesnakes and other animal ancestors. "A hog is asleep in all of us," said Zola. "A bear and a monkey are in every man," said an ancient observer. All the animals are in us. Luckily, thinking man, the most recently developed animal, generally rules with strength enough to keep down the others.

American "rye" is a whiskey without a country. The English say "American rye whiskey causes too much crime." Seventy-five thousand gallons on shipboard at a London dock will not be allowed to land. If it comes back here it will be arrested.

This country admits anything anybody chooses to say against American whiskey. But the whiskey trust can hardly be blamed when it suggests that "rye" is at least as innocent as English gin. Wife-beating records in America and England prove it.

Our railroads would like $500,000,000 for freight cars. Can you spare it?

And they will need more than a billion dollars this year in addition to the gigantic sums the American people have already put into them, and in addition to the five hundred millions now to be contributed as a subsidy or bonus during the first six months of 1920.

Private ownership of railroads simply means fattening and encouraging of usury.

Railroads are borrowing money at seven and eight per rent, taking ninety cents on the dollar, which means eighteen per cent. the first year. The public must be taxed to make up for that kind of "private ownership efficiency." There is no solution but government ownership.

In France workmen are cool toward all professional agitators that frankly confess a desire to make trouble without any constructive plan. The French workman does more thinking than the majority. He knows that he lives in this world. That he has got to stay here, eat and sleep here, and that if he tears down what has been built up, he will be the first to land on the sidewalk.

Every constructive plan to make the condition of workmen better is to be supported, every destructive plan, including any interruption of work, unless absolutely necessary, is to be denounced as stupid and criminal. The world will have trouble enough to take care of itself even if it works hard and every man does his fair share.

"Six companies cut big stock melons." That is from the financial column. One company gives its stockholders 400 per cent. in stock. They could sell that stock at a high price. The Supreme Court says that isn't "income." A man with six children gets $30 a week, and that is income on which the man must pay.

The Christian Science father who didn't call a doctor while his child was dying of diphtheria is found guilty. This writer, not a Christian Scientist, and therefore not entitled to expound the beliefs, understands that to keep doctors away from contagious and infectious cases is not Christian Science. Mrs. Eddy permits the calling in of doctors for the teeth, broken bones, and specifically forbids any violation of law in connection with infectious diseases.

What responsibility a father bears using his judgment about diseases that usually kill, if neglected, is for a jury to decide. Certainly if an accident opened an artery in a child's wrist, and the father prayed, refusing to call in a physician or send a tourniquet, it would be close to murder. At the same time, he might be absolutely sincere in his belief that prayer would stop the flow of blood.

Berlin police will take away the colossal Hindenburg statue, thus maddening the population, to keep the Allies from destroying or removing it. The Allies should read up on Alexander the Great. He never belittled or destroyed idols. On the contrary, he offered sacrifice to them, bowed down, worshipped, and presented his compliments. The people, highly pleased, bore his yoke with pleasure.

The Allies should treat the Hindenburg statue as Alexander treated the sacred Egyptian bull, Apis.
